The Chase Orchard, so-called, at Buck

field, is one of the most productive for the number of trees in Oxford County. This orchard is now owned and managed by Thomas Chase, who may be called an expert at the business. -The first man to take this place from the wilderness was Harrison Hutchinson, Sr. After dying of old age, the place passed into the hands of his son, Harrison Hutchinson, Jr., who later associated himself with his neighbor, Thomas Chase, and started an orchard under the firm name of Chase & Hutchinson. Washington, Aug. 14.-No single question vital to the people of the United States was dodged by President Coolidge in the first great speech of the political campaign-his speech offered him by the Republican party, and delivered in Washington the evening of August 14. Government bonds were below par. High war taxes burdened the people. Demobilization and liquidation were incomplete. Huge railroad accounts remained unsettled. Transportation was crippled. Unliquidated foreign debts amounted to $11,000,000,000. Banks were filled with frozen assets. Interest was high, capital scarce, and financial distress acute. About 5,000,000 were without employment. No adequate provision had been made for relieving disabled veterans and their dependents. The great powers continued to burden their peoples by building competitive armaments. An avalanche of war-worn people and cheapened merchandise impended upon America from foreign lands, the President pointed out. Turning to the settlement of these vast problems since the start of the Republican regime, the President pointed out that treatles of world-wide importance have been ratified with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Colombia and Mexico, that 42 other treaties have met with the approval of the senate, while 6 still await action. Friendly intercourse with Greece and Turkey has been resumed. Peace and American rights have been assured in the Far East and the Pacific. Turning to finance, the Presiden called attention to the enactment of the budget system, and the resultant tremendous savings. "For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921," President Coolidge said, "our expenditures were $5,538,000,000 and our surplus was $86,000,000. For the year just closed our expenditures were $3,497,000,000, and our surplus exceeded $500,000,000. This was a reduction in the annual cost of government of $2,041,000,000. The public debt now stands at about $21,250,000,000, which is a reduction in three years of about $2,750,000,000 and means an annual saving in interest of more than $120. 000,000. The $7,000,000,000 of shorttime obligations have all been quietly refunded or paid. The internal revenue taxes have been reduced twice, and many of them repealed, so that during the present fiscal year the tax receipts show a saving to the people of approximately $6,000,000 a day compared with 1921. One governmen bond has sold well over 105."

A member of the staff of this paper has received a bundle of Democrats found in far off Montana. They were printed in the seventies of the last century. No label appears on the papers, so it is im-possible to guess to whom they were sent; but it excites curiosity to know what there was about them that they should have been preserved for a half century. Also it speaks well for the paper stock used that they should survive the handling of that period of time.

Jellies and Conserves.

(By Lucy Thompson.) My last can of apple butter is gor and all I have left in the way of "spread" is a couple of small glasses of july.

Naturally I am looking forward to getting things filled up again for I find that a good supply of jellies and the like saves me a good deal of dessert making. especially on days when there is fresh

I don't think any of us hesitate to tackle anything in the way of jams, con erves, and butters, but when it comes pjelly it is different on account of the ccentricities of that thing called pectin that has to be in fruit juice if the jelly act and many an hour have I wasted trying to make jelly out of something that simply won't jell, and I might have saved a lot of work if I had known any test. It would be all right and easy we always wanted apple jelly or some-thing of the kind; it is the thirst for variety that gets us into trouble if we have no chart to steer by. The Michigan Agricultural College has made some tests and has published them in language so easy to follow tha they don't seem a bit technical. The wood alcohol test for pectin is this is present it will collect in a mass in the bottom of the spoon; if only a small amount it will be seen in small particles. You must watch this test carefully as the alcohol will dissolve the pectin in a The Epsom salts test is this: Mix together one teaspoon cooked fruit juice, one-half teaspoon sugar, and one-fourth teaspoon Epsom salts (all level measure-ments). Stir until all are dissolved and jellying juice. A large amount of pectin calls for A large amount of pectin calls for a large amount of sugar, nearly or entirely, equal parts of sugar and juice. Plenty of pectin but not much acid is likely to yield a tough jelly as in the case of quince, but quince mixed with apple makes a jelly of fine consistency and Urban Classic, Gavy and Rat.

The juices that jelly most readily are crabapple, apple, half-ripe grape, raspberry, blueberry, gooseberry, and currant. Any one of these may be com-General Repairing bined with others that jelly less readily, such as strawberry, peach, pear, pineapple, and cherry.

Pectin may be made from apple or orange. For the former take one pound of apple, skin and cores, juice of one lemon, one quart of water. Boil onehalf to three-quarters of an hour, let drain through cloth bag, bottle juice, and put away. Add this to your other fruit juice until you get a good pectin

Next winter when you want a little variety with your meat you will be glad if you have made some mint jelly. For is add some crushed mint leaves to apples while cooking, and put a few apples while cooking, and put a few after the birth of her baby several months ago, is carried in the arms of her hustis strained. If you are a very particular jelly maker you will drain the juice through two thicknesses of cheese cloth without pressure. This makes a sparkling, clear jelly. Then you can boil the pulp in a little more water and squeeze it this time, making jelly that is good but not of "company" quality. Then you can take the pulp and make it into a good Most of us do not make any distinction between jams, marmalades, butters, and onserves because we usually take what we have on hand and make it up in the most convenient way and that is all right as most of us are not profession als. If it turns out quite thick we may call it marmalade and if it has note in it.

it is conserve. That is near enough for practical purposes.

Plum makes one of the best and richest conserves. For this take: Six pounds plums, two oranges sliced, one and one-half pounds large raisins, seeded, one-half pound nut meats, three pounds sugar.

Wipe oranges clean, cut in quarters, and alice quarters thin, removing all seeds. Let stand in water to cover over night. Cook plums without water till soft and press through sieve. Add oranges (cooked till tender) and raisins to the plums and sugar and cook till the mixture thickens. Add nuts near the end of the cooking.
For rhubarb conserve take:
Three and one-half pounds rhubarb, three pounds augar, one-fourth pound nut meats, two oranges or one-fourth pound candied peel, grated rind and uice of two lemons. Prepare oranges as above, chop rhu barb fine, add sugar, lemon juice and rind, and put to cook. When the sugar is melted and the mixture is boiling throughout, add the nut meats chopped fine. If orange peel is to be used instead of oranges, put it in with the nut meats and cut it fine. Cook about 30 minutes.

Look in Your Mirror. Beauty is very much a matter of taking care, of getting acquainted with oneself, of finding one's good points and making the most of them. No woman is so handicapped that she has not some best" features through which to achieve attractiveness, though most of us are so covetous of what we have not that we verlook the possibilities of what we have and neglect, or overlook, really good points. Remember that when Nature appears to have been niggardly in bestowing beauty, intelligent thought and care will work miracles. Here are a few reminders in the way of "taking care" that will surely help any woman to "be as beautiful as she First, keep clean. It sounds shocking, but very few skins are kept really clean —and soap, a good soap, and water are the best agents whatever may have been said to the contrary.

A proper carriage of the head and shoulders will keep the contour of the neck graceful and lessen the tendency to wrinkles in the face.

Sleeping on a high pillow at etches the neck and makes the nuderchin muscles flabby. Biting the lips makes them thin and colorless, and keeping the teeth shut tightly causes the mouth to take or a straight line instead of that cupid's bow that is so desirable. Sullenne and unhappiness (if permitted) will cause the corners of the mouth to turn down, and no mouth with down-turning corners is beautiful. Twisting the mouth to one side produces a series of ugly wrinkles, while lifting the eye-further and devise plans for the codification of international law. "I trust that never again will the women of this nation be called on to sacrifice their loved ones to the terrible scourge of war," President Coolidge said.

Touching Eatin America, the President said that we have constantly striven to come to more complete ounderstandings with those nations. He recited the help given Mexico to avert lomestic violence there, and the indication of a policy of making it worth while for a government to conduct itself so as to merit recognition. He pointed to the written agreement with Mexico to negotiate a treaty of amity and commerce such as has not been in existence since 1881. Equal Opportunities for All. Of discrimination of all kinds, President Coolidge said: "This is one country; we are one people united by common interests. There should be no favorites and no outcasts; no race or re ligious prejudices in the government America opposes special privilege for anybody, and favors equal opportunity for everybody. It has adopted these conclusions because they are the logical conclusions of our ideals of free dom. Moreover, we believe they contribute to our material welfare. We oppose the artificial supports of privilege and monopoly because they are both unjust and uneconomic. They are not right. They do not work." The Farm Situation. Reviewing the situation of the farmer, the President said that one of the first thoughts in 1921 was for the relief and revival of agriculture as a fundamental industry, and touched upon the credits of between three and four hundred million dollars extended through the War Finance corporation. an additional $50,000,000 provided for the relief of the cattle industry, and the formation of a $10,000,000 corporation in the spring which, it was estimated, can furnish $100,000,000 for diversification and relief in the North west. He told of the activities of the intermediate credit banks, directly and indirectly assisting 500,000 farmers. The President commented on the resent upturn of prices for agricul tural products.

"The government rendered a great deal of assistance," he said, "and private enterprise co-operated, but the fundamental remedy was provided, as it always must be provided, not so much through the enactment of legislative laws as through the working out of economic laws. Because the farmers have thoroughly realized this they have on the whole opposed price fixing by legislation. While maintaining that sound position, they have seen a partial relief come in a natural way, as it was bound to come.
